The mobile radar which had been observed on 8 April 1952 in Sofia in the so-called "Cavalry Barracks" was seen once again on 30 January 1954 on a small hill located immediately west of the railroad, approximately halfway between Kharmanlii and Svilengrad. Some military personnel and several trucks were also observed in the vicinity of this radar station. A military camp appears to be located on this hill.

Comment: This camp is probably being confused with the radar station of Lyubimets. There may have been other equipment here in addition to the mobile radar station mentioned above since the report received was very incomplete. However, there were definitely no high pylons.
